Exchange-traded notes on Litecoin and Ripple now tradable at Boerse Stuttgart

Investors can participate in the future price development of the cryptocurrencies through exchange-traded securities

For the first time in Germany, investors can now buy and sell exchange-traded notes (ETNs) based on the cryptocurrencies Litecoin and Ripple (XRP). The four securities issued by XBT Provider in Sweden track the price of the two cryptocurrencies in relation to the euro and the Swedish krona.

‘There is a lot of interest in cryptocurrencies. These ETNs will allow investors in Germany to track future price developments of the two cryptocurrencies Litecoin und Ripple (XRP) through exchange-traded securities for the first time,’ explains Jürgen Dietrich, Director Blue Chips & Funds Trading at Boerse Stuttgart. As all other exchange-traded products, these crypto ETNs can be traded at Boerse Stuttgart between 8:00 and 22:00 hours CET. Since the beginning of April, the products have already been tradable in Sweden at the NGM exchange, which is a subsidiary of Boerse Stuttgart.
